An End to the Torpede Controversy.

The oil men throughout the country have been lceply interested in the torpedo question for the tel six or eight months, and for good reasons, as large share of the production of petroleum toive is attributable to the use of torpedoes. The while of the patent can hardly be estimated, for ts application must ultimately become almost universal.

Colonel Roberts has shown us his patent, just ectived from Washington, for Increasing the productiveness of all wells by the use of the forpedo. This case has been in controversy three years and five days, was appealed and carried through all the courts in the Potent Office, and inally to the United States Supreme Court at Washington, where the decisions that had been endered by the Examiners and Commissioners of Pitents was fully sustained by an ably writter decision of Judge Carter.
This putent clams the use of guapawder of

This is a complete monopoly o using torpedues in all wells, and so the ourlets has this question been argued and fought, step by gep, two years and up vards, by some of the bes to be the height of folly and money thrown away for any one to contest it in the courts, as there the variant has been bested, and the headalism skind, as the company propose to do the work is only awaiting the necessary signal to swing and operate on wells as cheep as it can possibly be done, by which means they hope to remove all inducement to land or working interests to infringe their rights.

It is a well-known free to off men that to Col Roberts is due the credit of bringing into practical use the torpedo, and his energy and perseverance had been the cause of many an oil product to be able to day to count his money by thousands of dollars instead of cents. We there-Roberts' rights the better, masmuch as it is not to be supposed that after a contest of two years he will abandon his erso at the time when he is prepaged to compel people to answer in the courts
